DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 (b) as being anticipated by Mukaihira et al. (Mukaihira) (Patent Number 5,526,643).

Regarding claims 1-2 Mukaihira discloses a NO_x purifying system and method for providing in the exhaust gas passage with a direct reduction type NO_x catalyst (40) which directly decomposes the NO_x in the exhaust gas during lean-condition operation and is regenerated during rich-condition operation, comprising a catalyst temperature detecting means (16), and a control device (8) for controlling to prohibit the rich-condition control when the temperature detected by said catalyst temperature detecting means is within a predetermined temperature range (e.g. See cols. 8-9, lines 1-67; col. 10, lines 1-56).

Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 (e) as being anticipated by Okada et al. (Okada) (Patent Number 6,644,021).

Regarding claims 1-2 Okada discloses a NOx purifying system and method for providing in the exhaust gas passage with a direct reduction type NOx catalyst (e.g. 25, 26) which directly decomposes the NOx in the exhaust gas during lean-condition operation and is regenerated during rich-condition operation, comprising a catalyst temperature detecting means (24), and a control device (28) for controlling to prohibit the rich-condition control when the temperature detected by said catalyst temperature detecting means is within a predetermined temperature range (e.g. See col. 6, lines 61-67; cols. 7-9, lines 1-67).

Prior Art

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure and consists of five patents:

Lang et al. (Pat. No. 6499291), Xu et al. (Pat. No. 6427439), Kinugasa et al. (Pat. No. 6032461), Cullen et al. (Pat. No. 5778666), and Mukaihira et al. (Pat. No. 6343466) all disclose an exhaust gas purification for use with an internal combustion engine.
